

Clinical Educator Bootcamp – Elevate Your Teaching at UC San Diego School of Medicine!

Wednesday, October 15 | 5:30–7:30 PM | Zoom

Are you a new faculty member ready to make your mark as an educator at UC San Diego School of Medicine? This interactive, high-impact bootcamp is designed specifically for MD/DO/PhD clinician educators who joined within the last two years.

You'll gain practical tools and insider knowledge to help you confidently engage in teaching across UC San Diego's rich and diverse clinical learning environment.

Information to be covered includes:

- Overview of teaching opportunities at UC San Diego School of Medicine across the entire teaching spectrum, including: Undergraduate Medical Education (UME), Graduate Medical Education (GME) and Continuing Professional Development (CPD)
- Resources to assist with teaching and learning
- Tips for teaching in the hospital – Dr. Dan Crouch, Program Director Pulmonary Critical Care Medicine
- Tips for teaching in the clinic – Dr. Trish Santos, Program Director Endocrinology Fellowship
- How to deliver power feedback in today's learning environment – Dr. Charlie Goldberg, Executive Director for Faculty Development

Beyond skill development, this is also a unique chance to connect with colleagues and join the thriving UC San Diego SOM educator community. Note: The content will not focus on teaching and learning within the research space.

Reserve your spot today! Please use this link to register:

https://ucsd.co1.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_d4FQQusVqGmuoF8

We're excited to see you in October!

Questions? Contact Dr. Charlie Goldberg at cggoldberg@health.ucsd.edu

Charlie Goldberg, MD

Executive Director for Faculty Development, UC San Diego School of Medicine

Sponsored by the UC San Diego School of Medicine Office of Faculty Development.